A TEXAS FRONTIER INCIDENT.

School House Attacked by Indians-Daring Bravery of Miss Amanda Howard.

of the Leon river in Hamilton county a small log school house. A beautiful valley three-quarters of a mile wide and one and a half miles long apread out in front-free from every obstruction to the view. This was called "Worlene Valley." The Howards lived half a mile west and John Baggett lived half a mile east of the school house. Erekiel Manning and Alexander Powers lived one and a half miles south, but behind a high hill. The Massengills, Ganns, Strangeline, Cole Kuykendall and James Kuykendali, lived up the river within two miles. J. B. Hendricks and sens, Crockett and Abe, lived two miles, Judge D. C. Snow and Nel, Livingston lived three and four miles, and the Pierson ranch was six miles below. The town of Hamilton was six miles southwest of the

At the time the incident took pince of which we write Miss Anu Whitney was traching this border school. "The fine was traching this border school. "The fine was Thursday, 2 p. m., Jely 11, 1801." (See Williarger's Indian Depredations). The lags of the school house were unlikewas and the spaces between were left open so that it was an easy matter for any one that it was an easy matter for any one outside to see the husde of the building and to shoot at any one there if they wished to. There was a small window cut out in the morth side, and was without a shutter. Olivis Barnes, about twelve years old, daughter of John Barbes, who lived hortheast ten or twelve miles, was boarding in the neighborhood. Her father was a stockman and was expected to come by that week to see her while out stock hunting.

On the day and about the hour mentioned a daughter of alexander Powers was at the door, which was on the south side of the house overlooking the valle; While there she discovered a party of men en horseback rapidly appreaching, and wes almost certain they were Indians. Miss Whitney seeing her standing at the door and looking he steadily, asked her what she saw. The reply was that she was looking at some persons in the valler who were coming towards the school house, and she insught they were indians.

The school mistress told her to come At the time the incident took place of house, and she abought they were indians. The school mistress told her to come away and be seated, and not to be so foolish as to talk about Indians, as the men were cow-hunters. Miss Whitney befisced that it was Mr. Barbee and others and did not look to see anything about them. The Powers girl, however, was sill uneasy and soon went to the door again and took another look crying out as she did so, They are Indians, and running back took her little brother by the hand and getting out of the window with him ran away. Miss Whitney then went to the door and after seeing the been told the chidren they were Indians and that they were taking "Mary Mary was the name of a nine suddle aritmal, the pet and property of Miss Whitney. She often reade the remark. "If the Indians ever take Mary I want them to take me, too."

When she became satisfied who the men

When she became satisfied who the men were she shut the door and told the children to escape by the window, so the indians could not see them, as they were coming up in front. All did this except Mary Jane, a daughter of Ezekiel Mannings, who was sick, and two annil sous and a little daughter of James M. Kuykendall, Miss Whitney was very large and could neither get out of the window, nor hope to escape by running out at the door.

house, while the other was taken out and places on a horse and carried away. This was John Kuykendall.

The Indian who was called into the house had discovered some of the children under the floor and had pulled Ollvia Barbes out and was putting her up behind him when called. This is summarized by which the Indian left her she run away and gained the words. On the following day she was found by Josiah Massendill, but the poor and was carried by fright and run see that he had to chase and run her dewn before bringing her in. She, however, soon recovered.

of Volney Howard, Miss Amanda's brother, Miss Howard was a fearless rider and was gentling a young horse for her own use and her sister-in-law was only keeping her compony.

They saw the Indians at the school house and at first took them to be cow hunters. They were discovered by the Indians before they had ridden far up the valley and two of them rode to meet them. The ladies soon discovered their mistake and turaed to run to the house of Mr. Bargett, towards the east, which was nearcr than their own home, on the west side.

The Indians came in hot pursuit of them. Miss Howard had come difficulty in turning and shriting her young horse, but when she had succeeded in doing so the Indians were view upon her. Sae, nowever, was a brave young lady and never once lost her presence of mimi.

Piring the winty vigorously, she diashed away from her pursuers and headed straight for Baggett's force, determined to make her horse leap it if she could. For this purpose she landed him furlously and he cleared it at a single bound and horse and rider escaped to Haggett's house.

Mrs. Sarah Howard did not fare so well; her horse shied and turned suddenly to one side just as the fence was reached and the ladiy was thrown headlong over the fence and the Indians got her horse. She was not badly hurt and, springing to her feet, also escaped to Mr. Baggett's come side just as the fence was reached and the ladiy was the Boward place and had proceeded about half was across the valley when he was attacked by some of the Indians who were leaving. Mr. Strangellie was nowing and had his family with him. He was killed, but not scalged, and his wife and two children were wounded. About this time Miss Amenda Howard, seeing what was going on, formed the bold design of escaping from the road the school hease, when were handled by and warning the scalled and component the school hease, when were alled and they led in the school hease, when it was an heredo in the road they had been and the school hease, when they did here to fee and the special when she became satisfied who the men to escape by the window, so the indians could not see them as they were coming up in front. All lidd this except Mary Jame, a daughter of Erskiel Man nings, who was sick, and two small some and a little daughter of James M Kuykendali. Miss Whitney was very large and Leshy, weighing absoit 230 pounds, and could neither get text of the window, nor hope to escape by rinning out at the deer.

Many of the children, instead of decing away, crawled under the house, and there witnessed the logicide scens which was enacted in the building.

The indians scou surrounded the house and many wily faces were seen at the cracks between the logs One fellow in dilged in a few eaths in broken English. The unfortunate young lady read her doom in the painted faces and blood, hirst looks of the sarages, but regard to the little coles of the sanges, his to carry the news out of the valley. The Indians finally came in front and commenced breaking in the door, and flies withing out of the window, but Miss Kurkendail received an arrow in the back as that time entered. This left into teacher the work, but too iste to do any further harm to the young lady. She was down and gasping her last.

The Indian who could speak some Finglish was now called and when he entered asked the two boys if they wished to go with them. One, in his fright, said 'yes' and the other said "no," and strange to say, the one who said "no" was runking pushed down on a stat and left in the house, while the other was taken out and placed on a horse and carried away. This was John Kurkendail.
